Project Office for International Youth Cooperation

HORIZONS OF INTERACTION

"I would like to thank the leadership of the region for facilitating the development of exchanges among the youth of the five countries. In particular, the Russia – BRICS Project Office for International Youth Cooperation, which is focused on supporting the systematic interaction of youth organizations of our countries, operates in the region. On the BRICS platform, different in cultural and civilizational terms states build relations on the principles of equality, taking into account each other's interests, mutual respect and openness to the outside world. The youth dialogue continues to make a useful contribution to the expansion of full-scale strategic partnership within the framework of BRICS, strengthening friendship, trust and mutual understanding between our peoples".

Sergey Lavrov

The Foreign Minister of Russian Federation

"At the Federal Agency for Youth Affairs of the Russian Federation, we attach special importance to the development of youth cooperation within the framework of BRICS and despite all the restrictions we are pleased to note that the intensity of youth events within the framework of BRICS is increasing every year. Today it's the young leaders who have the most direct influence on the development and implementation of our country's political courses".

Ksenia Razuvaeva

The Head of the Federal Agency for Youth Affairs (Russia)

“The BRICS association is a truly unique multilateral format, a vivid example of network diplomacy. Youth public diplomacy is an excellent tool for the development of international cooperation. It is aimed at strengthening strategic potential by involving young people. It is important for the younger generation of different countries and continents to cooperate for the sake of prosperity and well-being in the future. I am proud that the youth of the Ulyanovsk region is aimed at serious relations with foreign colleagues and non-profit organizations”.

Aleksey Russkikh

The Governor of the Ulyanovsk region

“The topics and problems that concern the younger generation are about the same in all BRICS countries: conscious consumption and environmental ecology, creative economy and creative self-realization, how to start a business or launch a startup, and others. More and more in their self-determination young people are looking for partnership and cooperation with foreign peers. The Russia – BRICS Project Office for International Youth Cooperation is a kind of platform for such communication and a resource center at the same time”.

WHAT IS BRICS?

BRICS is the acronym coined to associate five major emerging economies: Brazil, Russia, India, China and South Africa. It is noteworthy that the sequence of letters in a word is determined not only by euphony, but also by the similarity of the English transcription of BRICS to the English word «bricks», thus, this term is used as a designation for a group of countries, due to the growth of which the future growth of the world economy will largely be ensured.

The BRIC Association (such an acronym had been used in regard to the organization before South Africa joined it in 2010) was created on the initiative of the Russian Federation side in June 2006 as part of the St. Petersburg Economic Forum with the participation of the Ministers of Economy of Brazil, Russia, India and China.

The first BRIC meeting was held on September 20, 2006 on the sidelines of the 61st session of the UN General Assembly in New York. It was attended by the Foreign Ministers of Russia, Brazil, China and the Defense Minister of India, who agreed to develop multifaceted cooperation between the four countries.

On May 16, 2008, Yekaterinburg hosted the first full-scale meeting of the foreign ministers of the BRIC states. Following its results, a joint communique reflecting the common positions of the parties on topical issues of global development was adopted.

A fundamentally important step in the formation of the association was made on July 9, 2008, when a separate meeting of the leaders of Brazil, Russia, India and China was held on the sidelines of the Group of Eight summit in Toyako (Japan) on the initiative of the Russian side.

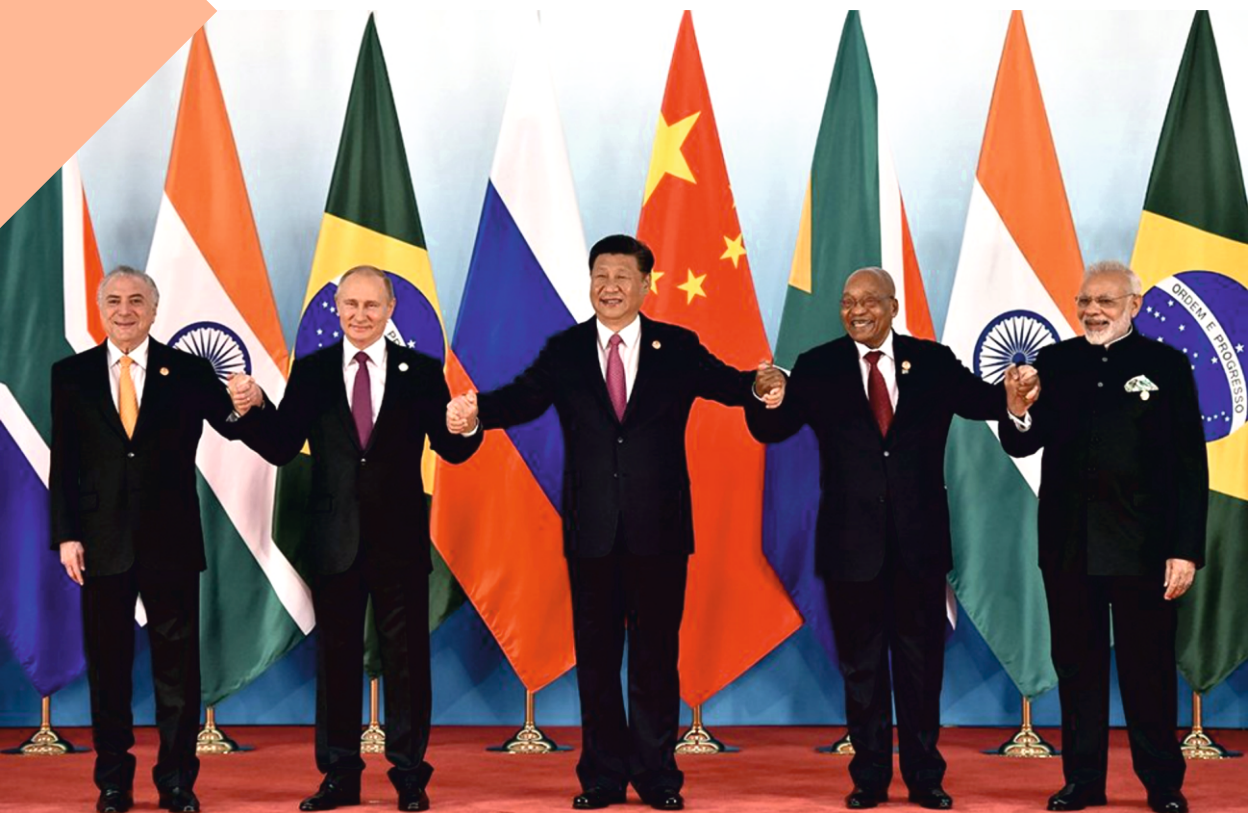

The first full-scale BRIC summit was held on June 16, 2009 in Yekaterinburg. The final Joint Statement recorded the desire of the countries of the association to develop a “consistent, active, pragmatic, open and transparent dialogue and cooperation” that serve not only “the common interests of emerging markets and developing countries, but also the construction of a harmonious world in which lasting peace and common prosperity would be ensured”.

The purpose of the creation of BRICS was to ensure solidarity in the social, economic and political spheres, to promote security and stability in the world. The five states are united by a common understanding that the solution of the most difficult tasks of our time is possible only through the joint efforts of the entire world community with unconditional respect for the principles and norms of international law and the UN Charter.

An important result of the interaction of the BRICS countries was the launch of the New Development Bank (NDB) with headquarters in Shanghai in 2015 and the Pool of Conditional Foreign Exchange Reserves of the BRICS with a total amount of more than 250 billion US dollars.

The BRICS countries account for about 42% of the population, as well as about 30% of the planet's territory. The official languages of the organization are Chinese, English, Portuguese, Russian and Hindi. The BRICS countries represent Asia, Africa, Europe and Latin America, which determines the transcontinental dimension of their cooperation and gives it special value and significance.

Unlike integration associations such as the EU, SCO, Eurasian Union, etc., where formal membership exists, cooperation with BRICS does not require long approval procedures. Now there are already “BRICS Plus” and “BRICS Outreach” formats that allow all interested states to enter into joint projects with the BRICS countries. The first one is used for communication with states, relations with which are a priority for the participants of the five countries. The Chair country, using its powers, may send invitations at its discretion. The second allows members of the association to meet with neighbors and regional partners of the organizer of the event.

Formats of interaction within the framework of BRICS:

- Annual summits and meetings of leaders “on the sidelines” of the Group of Twenty (G20) summits;
- Meetings of senior officials in charge of national security issues;
- Meetings of governors of the New Development Bank;
- Meetings of foreign ministers and heads of other sectoral ministries and departments (economy and foreign trade, finance and central bank governors, agriculture, environment, education, health, science, technology and innovation, labor and employment, telecommunications, industry, heads of intellectual property departments, tax, customs, statistical, antimonopoly departments, prosecutor’s offices, heads of export credit agencies);
- Sherpa/su-sherpa meetings (representatives of the Ministries of Foreign Affairs);
- Meetings of working groups on cooperation in various fields (on trade and economic issues, intellectual property, employment, environment, anti-corruption, customs issues, agriculture, healthcare, counter-terrorism, information security, cooperation in the field of information and communication technologies, drug control).

The BRICS countries occupy a unique place in the global economy. According to data for 2021, they together create about 30% of the global gross product (according to the purchasing power parity of national currencies). They are a massive global market – about 2.8 billion people.

The advantageous position of these countries ensures that they have both a powerful and developing economy and a large number of resources important for the world economy:

- Brazil is the 8th economy in the world in terms of Gross Domestic Product calculated at Purchasing Power Parity (hereinafter - GDP (PPP)), rich in agricultural products;
- Russia is the 6th economy in the world in terms of GDP (PPP), the largest reserves of mineral resources, has the largest territory in the world, one of the two largest nuclear powers in the world;
- India is the 3rd economy in the world by GDP (PPP), cheap intellectual resources, one of two countries with more than a billion people;
- China is the world's 1st economy by GDP (PPP) and the world's 1st exporter («world factory»), the owner of the world's largest foreign exchange reserves, has the world's largest population;
- The Republic of South Africa is the world's 33rd economy by GDP (PPP), a variety of natural resources.

The member states of the association are influential participants of authoritative international structures (the UN, the Group of Twenty (G20), the WTO, the Non-Aligned Movement, the Group of 77 (G77)), as well as regional associations (CIS, CSTO, EAEU, SCO, APEC, BIMSTEC, MERCOSUR, the African Union (AU), SADC, etc.).

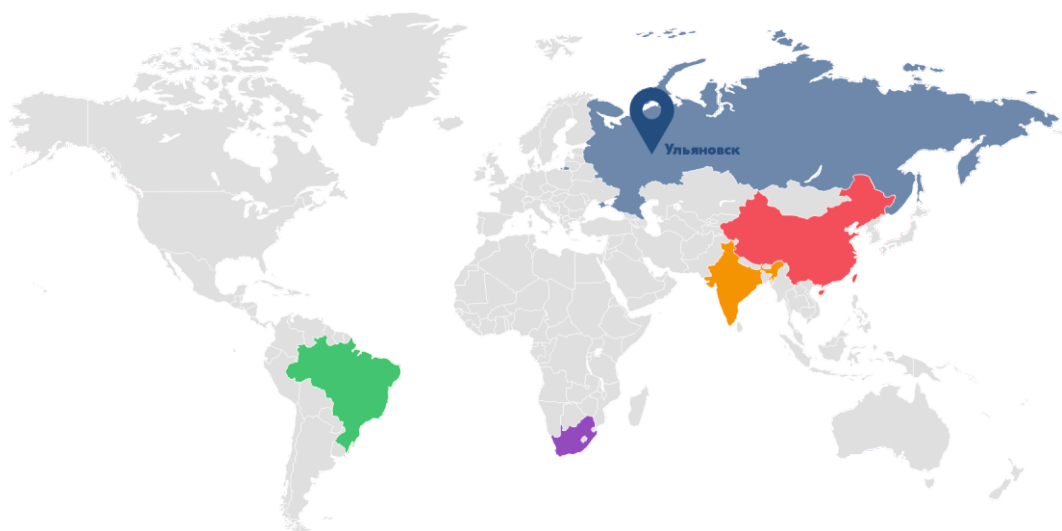

The BRICS Chairmanship is carried out by the participating state during the calendar year on a rotating basis. All decisions are made by consensus. More than a hundred meetings are held annually, of which about 20 are at the ministerial level. Cooperation between city administrations, business, academic and scientific circles, and civil society is developing.

In order to coordinate the current work of the association, there is an institute of national sherpas/ su-sherpas representing the Ministries of Foreign Affairs of five countries.

One of the priorities in the BRICS activities is to contribute to strengthening security and stability in the world. The five states are united by a common understanding that the solution of the most difficult tasks of our time is possible only through the joint efforts of the entire world community with unconditional respect for the principles and norms of international law and the UN Charter.

The BRICS youth line is best known for such events as the Youth Summit and the meeting of youth ministers and heads of youth affairs agencies, the Youth Energy Summit.

The government of the Ulyanovsk region, cultural and educational institutions, NGOs of the region develop international cultural relations with more than 30 countries of the world, constantly maintain contacts with foreign partner organizations, foreign cultural centers, embassies, foundations, and also conducts negotiations and searches for potential partners abroad. - there are 64 International Friendship Clubs in Ulyanovsk schools;
- more than 1500 students from India study at Ulyanovsk State University, and in total, about 3000 students from more than 40 countries study at universities in the region;
- “Ulyanovsk – Capital of Culture” Foundation, on the basis of which the Project Office was established, has been regularly holding many international events since 2012, some of which are listed above;
- foreign industrial enterprises are located in the region, such as “Bridgestone” (Japan), “Vestas” (Denmark), “Nemak” (Mexico), “Isuzu” (Japan), “DMG Mori” (Germany-Japan), “Hempel” (Denmark), “Scamol” (Denmark), “Henkel” (Germany), “Scheffler” (Germany), “Jockey” (Germany), “Mars” (USA), “Legrand” (France) and others.

"The Ulyanovsk region is one of the obvious leaders of activity in external relations. And it is very important that this activity is not only of a tourist or educational nature. These are very specific projects that ultimately contribute to the implementation of the internal programs formulated by the management and the solution of internal tasks for the socio-economic development of the region. I am sincerely impressed by the fact that at the same time the competent departments of the region do not stop at realizing subjective interests, but look wider".
